

Appliance for well cementation has two-wall body with circular cavity, filter, this is mounted at the outer wall of the body, and valve nodes mounted at its inner wall. To increase reliability of tightening of the unit the filter is made separately from the body at branch pipe, connected with draining channels to the body, inside it a closing gate is placed concentrically, this is fixed by a stopper resting on cut plug of the body of the appliance, and after travel upwards it is fixed by a split springy ring.