

An apparatus and method for carbamate decomposition and stripping of ammonia and carbon dioxide from urea solutions which contains a stripper including cylindrical housing, which can be installed on the structure for supporting the housing in two different vertical positions formed at turning for  $180^\circ$  relative to the horizontal axis of the symmetry (x-x) of the stripper.