

Device for treatment and chipping of ice comprise at least one executive body installed with possibility of rotation around inclined axis. Shear means has the second operating base, it is duplicate and located from opposite, with respect to operating base of shear means, side with possibility to change its position in operating one.