

Device for treatment of ice and/or earth has at least one executive device inclined with working base down. Working base of executive device has cutting element installed across axis of rotation of executive device.