

The invention relates to medicine, in particular to the Pauk method for correction and prevention of myopia according to which involves eidoptometry, examination of liver and bile passages by clinical and paraclinical methods, and when detecting changes therein duodenal intubation and treatment of hepatobiliary system are carried out followed by eidoptometry.