

The invention relates to the fire-extinguishing powders. A multipurpose fire-extinguishing powder contains ammophos, chamotte-caoline powder, and hydrophobic aerosil. For increasing the resistance to vibrations and the thermal exposure, the fire-extinguishing powder contains also the inert hydrophobic dust allowing for increasing fire-extinguishing performance in the fires of the combustible liquids.