

The proposed carbon material for consumable electrodes contains, in percent by weight, 67 ... 73 % of thermoanthracite, 24 ... 27 % of coal tar pitch, and scale. The present invention provides a possibility to increase the strength, electric conductivity, and heat conductivity of electrodes made of the proposed material.