

The invention relates to medicine, namely to the use of a drug for treatment or improving the restoring quality of the sleep in the patients suffering from the primary insomnia. A drug contains at least one compound selected from melatonin and melatonin agonists in effective amount and optionally one or more of therapeutically active agents.