

A construction for keeping highly productive cows, heifers and young cattle animals indoor and loose on a deep straw litter is a split-type construction of a light-hangar type with a tent cover, which consists of two premises, connected by a milking unit, one of the premises is divided into areas and sections for 50 cows and heifers and includes a rest area, a feeding area with the back fixation close to a feeding table and a enclosing grate, and the second premise for young cattle animals is divided into an area with individual sectional wire cages, in which calves are kept from birth thereof to the 2-month age, a calving area of cows and an area for newly calved cows which are disposed close to an area for growing the young cattle animals.