

The invention relates to the method for treating the syndrome of the attention deficiency and the hyperactivity in the children. The method provides for the intramuscular injections of the cryopreserved suspension of the fetal cells of the cerebral tissue in a volume of 1.8 ml four times with three-day interval.