

The proposed method for producing stencil printing forms is distinctive by using a laser with a radiation wavelength of 650 ... 700 nm. The material for the realization of the method contains eosin as a photosensitive component.