

A device for fastening two parts (2, 3) to each other comprises fastening screws (17) extending in aligned passages in the two parts (2, 3), and means (25) for preventing the screw heads (18) from moving. The means for preventing the screw heads from moving comprise at least one removable element including means (23, 28) for preventing rotation relative to one (2) of the two parts for fastening together.