

The first object of disclosed invention is a roller support of belt conveyer, which has a roller installed on the support, which is fastened on a frame. The support is folding. The second object of invention is a conveyor, which includes a belt surface and, at least, one horizontal roller, in which above mentioned roller support is used.