

A method for application of porous films which comprises the use of low-temperature plasma of discharge, providing of electric charging of bunches, extraction of bunches from plasma, acceleration in electric field and deposition on the substrate.