

The invention relates to the method and installation for cleaning cereal grains, particularly wheat. Cleaned and moistened wheat is moistened once again on the surface thereof and the outer hulk are removed in a hulling machine (20). Afterwards, the dehulled cereal grains can be ground and polished.