

The proposed helicopter training system is designed for training pilots and maintenance personnel of helicopters. The system contains a platform, at which a simulator for training helicopter pilots, a simulator for training in performing maintenance procedures for helicopters, a simulator for training in operations with functional systems of helicopters, and a computer with corresponding software. The proposed training system is distinctive by its extended functionality range, resulting in higher quality of training specialists.