

The invention relates to sintered molecular sieves based on molecular sieves with pore openings equal to approximately 3 Å, to the preparation method thereof and to the use of same for the drying of organic compounds, particularly alcohols and/or esters, in gaseous or liquid phase, whereby compounds to be dehydrated are passed through an adsorbent bed based on the aforementioned sintered sieves.