

The present invention relates to a process for preparation of branched chain hydrocarbons from methanol and/or dimethyl ether, which comprises the contacting, in a reactor of methanol and/or dimethyl ether with a catalyst comprising indium halide.