

The present invention concerns the use of peptide compounds for treating central neuropathic pain.