

Method for determination of toxicity of products of burning of materials under conditions of fire that includes determination of index of toxicity of burning products and mass rate of burning of material and ratio between those characteristics.