

Disclosed is a process for the determination of performance quality of systems for the purification of waste water, wherein performance index is determined as square number of food vacuoles index.