

The invention is directed to a process and apparatus for the removal of hydrogen sulphides from streams containing them, in particular from wastewater streams, According to the invention, hydrogen sulphide is stripped from the process liquid by means of a vacuum stripper. The gas thus produced has a high H₂S content, which facilitates further processing.