

A method and device for the plasma perforation of tipping paper (4), wherein a low temperature plasma (3) is generated on the surface of the tipping paper (4) by briefly ionizing a gas mixture using an energy source that is as close in form to a point as possible, wherein the ionizable gas mixture is locally restricted to a very small surface region of the tipping paper (4).