

The disclosure relates to a method to form a digital print on a substrate (4) comprising a polymer material by bonding particles in powder form (34) to the surface of the substrate.