

The invention relates to methods for controlling parasitic weeds of host plants, comprising the treatment of seed with a composition comprising at least one acetolactate synthase (ALS) inhibitor. The invention also relates to seed from host plants treated with at least one ALS inhibitor.