

The present invention relates to a method to produce a wear resistant foil, comprising providing a first foil comprising a first thermoplastic material, applying wear resistant particles and a second thermoplastic material form on the first foil, and adhering the first foil to the second thermoplastic binder and the wear resistant particles to form a wear resistant foil.