

A seed meter, comprising: a seed disc having a plurality of seed apertures, said plurality of seed apertures defining a circular path, each said seed aperture having a central axis, said seed disc entraining seeds from a seed source onto each of said plurality of seed apertures; and a singulator including a first orientation lobe, said first orientation lobe changing an orientation of said entrained seeds.