

Well level gauge – sampler includes measuring probe, this comprises of cylindrical metal housing with insulation rings fixed at the housing of the measuring ruler, with displacement floater with two magnets and installed in the cavity of cylindrical housing cup-sampler, and a block for signaling and measurement. Simplification of structure of the unit is achieved due to presence of measurement probe in the device.