

The invention relates to devices for cleaning of hollow objects. A device for cleaning of internal surface of conduits includes a housing with cleaning disks coaxially located on it and supporting disks, which create a centering apparatus. The parameters of centering apparatus are determined by specific ratio.