

The invention relates to units for air supply to combustion engines installed on armored machines. A system for air supply of combustion engine is characterized in that it is provided with covers lifting and lowering mechanism, second dust collector with drain hole arranged below the preliminary filter, and second dedusting ejector connected to the dust collector of the preliminary filter and to the outlet dedusting nozzle, the outlet of air intake tube is connected to the inlet of the fine filter.