

This invention relates to carrying people to hotel, in particular, in mountain area of recreation zone. People are brought by vehicles to the elevators of the hotel where the upper stores or roof of the last one are connected with horizontal or inclined bridge to a road going at the nearest height or hill flank. At the other side of that hotel, to the neighboring hotel, at level of the upper stores or roofs there as well a bridge is arranged for following transportation of people by vehicles from the road.