

A filter substance for cleaning of lubricating fluids. The mobile transport of all types and stationary equipment with different types of internal combustion engines is the branch of use of possible invention. The filter substance for the cleaning of lubricating fluids has mineral - clay and carbon-containing components. The substance contains as carbon-containing component - starch, and as connecting component - kerosene with following ratio of components (% by weight): clay - 40-45, starch - 40-45, kerosene - 20-10.