

A valve with a floating working surface has a movable tightened rod with a support surface of an exhaust valve, and a tightening sealing ring of the inlet valve. The tightening sealing is equipped with a floating ring and installed inside the setting place with possibility of deformation of the upper and the lower parts of the ring under the action of the pressing force.