

The preparation of gaseous products from the thermal decomposition of 1,2-dichloroethane is simplified if the cracked gas is cooled down to a temperature ranging from approximately 150 to 180°C. Only one subordinated portion which contains the entire amount of formed coke is condensed and fed to a separate preparation.