

A method for rectification of crude ethyl alcohol provides for a separate delivery of crude ethyl alcohol and water for epuration and a subsequent selection of the main fraction of ethyl alcohol and epurate, at that water is delivered to the lower zone of epuration. The method provides for a considerable decrease in concentration of ethers, aldehydes and methyl alcohol in epurate, due to that the target product quality is enhanced.