

A technical drawing of a cylindrical device, likely a component of a medical instrument. The device consists of a main cylindrical body (1) and a ring (2) at one end. A rectangular component (7) is attached to the ring via a small vertical rod (5). A dashed line (6) indicates a longitudinal section or internal structure. A small circular feature (3) is visible on the ring.

