

The invention relates to metallurgy. A starting aluminum is smelted, formed of ingots from it, which then is taken in hermetic covering from metal of greater density, for example, from steel or cast iron.