

A rear-view mirror contains a reflecting element, a rod, which allows to fix the reflecting element in the rear position. The rod is rigidly connected by one end with the reflecting element, and by another end it is rigidly connected with the mounting or ear holder of goggles or with protection helmet of the driver.