

A gravitation engine relates to power engineering and is made of two infinite parallel bands placed on the upper and the lower drums between which the volume in vertical is divided into uniform parts by parallel partitions; at that at the shafts of the upper drums pinions are fixed, those go into coupling with each other and the electric generator.