

The utility model relates to machine building. A hinge of universal spindle has fork-like head fixed on the shaft of the spindle, this has two jaws on which symmetrically with respect to each other semi-cylindrical sockets are provided, with rectangular inserts with bosses corresponding to the sockets; at that all those elements and the blade of the spindle have openings in which at axis normal to the axis of symmetry of the fork-like head pin is placed; at that the hinge is equipped with two rectangular U-shaped plates installed between each of the inserts and the blade of the spindle with provision of tight fit; at that the thickness of the plate is 1–1.5 % of the width of the insert.