

The cell preparation designed for cell transplantation is proposed. The preparation consists of the cryoconserved embryonic human liver cells and cryoconserved embryonic human neuronal cells. The method for the treatment of the vascular pathology of the eye consists in the retrobulbar transplantation of the preparation proposed containing the cryoconserved embryonic human liver cells with addition of the cryoconserved embryonic human neuronal cells.