

A working part of an automatic machine for winding rings from tape contains an unregulated forming roller and two bending rollers, one of which is unregulated, but other is set up with possibility of regulation, said rollers are located in such a manner that all angles of the triangle formed by lines of centres of three rollers are acute.