

The proposed fuse is designed for protecting elements of electrical equipment against overload and short circuit. The fuse contains a casing, a melting insert that is made of material with shape memory effect, springs for fixing the position of the melting insert, a fuse operation indicator, and parts for resetting the fuse in the initial state after operation.