

The method for purification of bovine serum provides for adding polyethylene glycol with the aim of precipitating gamma globulin fraction followed by centrifugation. The supernatant is clarified by centrifugation, separation or filtration and sterilized by filtration.