

A process for producing liquid fuel consists in mixing saturated and unsaturated hydrocarbons with oxygen-containing components. At that, first 10-30 vol. % of at least one ether is mixed with 40-60 vol. % of at least two saturated or unsaturated hydrocarbons and then 10-15 vol. % of at least two kinds of monohydric alcohol are added.