

A pulse high-power current accelerator comprises an anode in the form of an axisymmetric chamber with a grid, a cathode, a capacitive storage device, at least two plasma guns, each of which have at least two electrodes divided with dielectric, and also a device for pumping united with a camera. Electrodes of a plasma gun are made of material, which sorbs gas.