

The method for stretching the skin and the mucosa provides for the exposure of the skin to the diathermic current until the feeling of burning. Prior to the procedure, the skin is contracted with the aid of the previously stretched elastic elements.