

The proposed device for producing plate plastic reconstructions contains a support with a mounting rod, a service table designed for sequentially building up the elements of the reconstruction, and two interconnected fixing frames for paper templates, which are installed with the possibility to move along the mounting rod.