

Method for liquid treatment of textile packing through preliminary vacuumizing, heating and forming forced circulation of treating solution in radial direction of the packing body. At that, additionally magnetic treatment of the packing is performed.