

A method of making wormwood cigarettes provides for the use of a mould with grooves shaped as cigarettes, wherein the latter are pressed with the following removal of the cigarettes from the mould. The grooves of the mould are covered with a sheet of paper, filled up with wormwood tinder and glued with the other sheet of paper from above, pressed forming a block of cigarettes.